

Victoria Sexton

Victoria Sexton is a financial coach, believer in abundance, gratitude, and investing in yourself. She helps successful women attain financial freedom by providing her clients with straight-talk financial coaching, education, and strategies that give them the confidence to embrace their abundance and take control of their financial future.

After spending years of working in finance (and still not meeting her own financial goals) she discovered her secret sauce - the combination of money mindset and a practical personal financial system. Now, she teaches her clients the same system that allowed her to experience financial independence.

She is the founder of Align Wealth Coaching, creator of the Effortless Money System, and host of The Don't Play With Trash podcast; and now has added author to her resume. Her first book, Effortless Money: How to Align Your Wealth and Your Woo is launching July 22, 2021.

"If the year 2020 taught us anything, it taught us that some things we just don't need. For me, and for my clients, we found that we no longer need our lives, and our money, to be complicated. As a financial coach, I talk with people every day about their money. Most of the time, my clients just want simple answers. They want the straight talk solutions. Whether it's their financial system, money mindset, or a combination of both, people need a system that's not just easy, but effortless. I have felt something in my soul telling me that now is the time for people to make their money an ally and to make it easy. We don't have time for fluff. Right now we need to make our money effortless." - Victoria Sexton
